

AMY HOFFMAN
editing, writing, consulting

Editing at all levels:

- Development: conceiving and structuring your writing project
- Copy editing: organization, consistency, sentence structure, and word choice
- Proofreading

Experienced in working with many types of writing:

- Websites, blogs, reports, proposals, and newsletters
- Books, dissertations, articles
- Fiction and nonfiction

An editor and writer since the mid-1970s:

- Women's Review of Books, editor in chief
- Freelancer with clients including getAbstract, Political Research Associates, Mayyim Hayyim Community Mikveh, and many others
- Unitarian Universalist World magazine, executive editor
- South End Press, book editor
- Gay Community News, features and managing editor

It may also interest you to know:

- Author of An Army of Ex-Lovers (University of Massachusetts Press, 2007), Hospital Time (Duke University Press, 1997), and numerous articles and reviews
- Creative nonfiction faculty member, Pine Manor College Solstice MFA Program
- MFA in writing from the University of Massachusetts

A few comments about my work:

She has a kind of perfect pitch for language. A skilled editor like Amy can make a huge difference in the lonely, messy process of writing.

—Anita Diamant
author of The Red Tent and other works

Amy Hoffman's smart editing has time and again made my writing sharper. She's a real pro.

—Cynthia Enloe
author of The Curious Feminist and other works

As a young writer, I look to my editors for more than simple help dotting i's and crossing t's. With admirable editorial prowess, Amy has guided me in bringing my work to its height.

—Sharifa Rhodes-Pitts
essayist; contributing editor, Transition magazine

Please contact me to discuss your writing project:

617/524-2261 (home); 617/821-2135 (cell)
amybhoffman@earthlink.net

I eat deadlines for breakfast.